Recruitment:

Questions that St Helens children think we should ask

What experience do you have working with children?

How would you help children if they were in need?

How would you support people in school if they were being bullied?

Would you treat each child equally even if they had done something wrong?

If anyone was scared to talk to someone, how would you support them?

Complaints and Advocacy:

An advocate should be understanding, be caring or loving, give advice be familiar. An advocate should take action, fixing problems and acting as peacemaker. They should be trustworthy and be someone who is there for you.
