Early Years Spring term activity. National Literacy Trust

National Year of Reading 2026 is now live!

Reading in early years changes everything!

Hearing stories, songs and rhymes from infancy strengthens vital brain pathways, builds vocabulary and helps children develop the communication skills they rely on for life. These early literacy experiences lay the groundwork for future learning.

Sharing books and stories helps children make sense of emotions, explore new ideas and build secure relationships with the adults around them. When they are part of everyday life, children grow in confidence, become more curious and develop emotional resilience.

SEND Local Offer – Important Update

When updating your details in the new portal, please ensure you consider the SEND Local Offer questions.

This topic will be discussed at the EYHUB and during the Early Years SENCO Network meetings. This section will only become available to you once your webpage is approved. So, please amend that section with relevant information.

Local Offer - Introduction for SENCOs

All settings, schools and childminders have been asked to upload their information to the new online directory St Helens Family Information Directory | SEND Information Hub.

This happens in two steps. You fill in basic information about your provision, then after you are classified as the educational setting and approved at the council level, you will be able to upload your SEND offer. I have attached a list of questions that will appear in your form to fill in.

As a Special Educational Needs Coordinator (SENCO), your role is pivotal in ensuring that every child or young person receives the support they need to thrive.

The following questions have been designed to help you reflect honestly and comprehensively on your setting's current practice from the perspective of parent carers. They align with statutory requirements and best practice guidance for SEND provision.

It is an opportunity to share how effectively your setting identifies needs, provides tailored support, and engages families in the process. Parents and carers want clarity, transparency, and reassurance that their child's needs will be met. Your responses should therefore:

- Be accurate and evidence-based: Reflect what actually happens in your setting, not what is intended or aspirational.
- Show empathy and accessibility: Use language that is clear and parent-friendly, avoiding jargon.
- Demonstrate accountability: Explain roles, responsibilities, and processes so parents understand who does what and how decisions are made.
- Highlight inclusivity and collaboration: Show how you involve parents and children in planning and decision-making.

Each question focuses on a key area of SEND provision—from identification and curriculum adaptation to wellbeing, specialist support, and transition planning. Use the guidance prompts under each question to ensure your answers are detailed and practical. This will help build trust with families and strengthen your setting's Local Offer.

If you feel you'd like further guidance, the next SENCO Network in March will be focused on Inclusion as defined by Ofsted in their EY Toolkit and the SEND Local Offer. Check our Spring Term 2026 training to book a place. (EYHUB St Helens website).
